All Endurance International
Brands

On this page, I'm listing all of the Endurance International Group brands that they own as well as additional information as they come available. In the community, most refer to Endurance International Group simply as EIG and I will also use this acronym in reference to them throughout this site.

It should be understood that Endurance has taken over some major brands recently, including Bluehost and HostGator, and these brands still have their same customer support systems in place pre-takeover. So far, from what I've heard from people within these companies, everything has been business-as-usual with most customers remaining happy with their host.

Current list of known brands owned by EIG Include:
