

away, and it was bouncing off of me at that time.

Q. Do you know where he struck it?

A. Do I know where he struck it? I thought he struck it off the bar surface, but I did not see him do it. When I looked up, he had the beer bottle in his hand and he was going something like in a circle motion, and then he went out the door.

Q. Did he say anything at the same time as he broke the bottle or waved it?

A. Nope. No, he did not.

Q. And where in what direction was he pointing the jagged end of the bottle?

A. It was more or less, you know, in a general direction. It was not in - at any specific one person, I don't think.

Q. Were there people in front of the area where he was pointing the beer bottle?

A. Me - well, I was the one who was behind the bar, and he was pointing it kind of towards the bar area.

Q. All right. Did you see - you say glass went flying everywhere. Did you see anywhere else it went flying besides at you?

A. Yes, glass hit a girl who was down to
